

ABSTRACT

A system and method for creating, editing, and/or executing a test program for testing a transformer is provided. The system includes an input that allows the user to select the 5 desired test instructions and pre-existing sequences of test instructions to create or edit a test program having a sequence of test instructions. The processor executes the test program by generating commands that are performed in a predetermined order.

10

15

20

25

30

35

FOOTNOTES